CRISIS PASSED.

Young Roosevelt Practically Out of Danger.

The President to Leave for Washington This Afternoon.

GROTON, Mass., Feb. 13.—Young Theodore Roosevelt passed a good night, and this morning his condition was such that it was announced that the President would leave for Washington this afternoon. The crisis of the disease in the right lung has been passed successfully, the left lung has been cleared to the satisfaction of the doctors, and the boy now is considered practically out of danger. Encouraging reports were received from the bedside of the other two boys, Howard Potter of New York and William Gammell, Jr., of Providence.

The early morning report, as given out by Mr. Cortelyou, the President's secretary, was to the effect that the crisis in young Roosevelt's condition had been passed during the night. He said that the left lung had cleared considerably during yesterday and more last night, while the disease in the right lung had been checked. The boy is now practically out of danger, and while his recovery will probably be slow no setback is expected.

Mr. Cortelyou at this hour said that no time had been set for the departure of the President, but it will probably be late this afternoon. It is expected that he will return by way of Worcester and will reach Washington early Friday morning.

For the eighth consecutive day the sun rose clear and bright this morning, and it was remarked that it seemed providential that this should have been the case while there was sickness.

President Roosevelt went from the Gardner House quite early today to visit his son and to bring back his wife to breakfast. For the first time since his arrival the President talked to the newspaper men this morning while they were securing the report of his son's condition. He was very cordial and spoke cheerily. He said he was delighted at the favorable change in the boy's case.

During the night after 11 o'clock the room in which young Roosevelt is placed was not lighted at all, and he had an abundance of rest. The other two boys, however, were quite restless, and one of them cried out considerably, his words being audible for some distance outside the building. Other than that, there was no incident during the entire time.

Just before 11 o'clock Secretary Cortelyou visited the press headquarters, and stated that the boy was in excellent condition. The appearance of the secretary, together with that of all connected with the school and the Gardner homestead, showed a distinct cheerfulness, indicating that the anxiety of the past week was practically over.

Mr. Cortelyou said that from present indications President Roosevelt would leave for the capital between 1 and 2 o'clock today, and that a schedule is now being prepared to cover the [illegible] of the trip. At first it was decided that the party would travel by way of Worcester, but at 11 o'clock the route via Boston was being considered. It was expected that a decision would be reached before noon.

Secretary Cortelyou announced to the newspaper men here at 1 o'clock today that the President would leave Groton for Washington at [illegible] o'clock this afternoon, by way of Worcester. His car will be attached to a regular train at that point, but he said that it was not decided just which route the President would use from Worcester, whether the Norwich & Worcester or the Boston & Albany.

At [illegible] o'clock President Roosevelt, accompanied by Dr. Lambert, came over to the [illegible] to personally meet and greet the [illegible] who had been in Groton since Sunday. He was evidently in high spirits, [illegible] ... [illegible] ... Mrs. Roosevelt [illegible] ...

"I want to thank you boys for myself," he said, "for the consideration which you have shown to me [illegible] ..." [illegible]

[illegible] he said, "I shall leave this afternoon with Dr. Lambert. Alice will come over from Washington tomorrow, to take my place, to a certain extent, while Mrs. Roosevelt will remain here [illegible] days more. Then when Ted is in condition she will take him to the White House for a while, but [illegible] ..."

LOSS OF 51.

Rhode Island Veterans Falling from the Ranks.

Grand Army and Women's Relief Corps in Session.

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 13.—The thirty-fifth annual encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic, department of Rhode Island, convened in Liberty hall, this city, today, with a large representation of delegates from this state and a number of prominent visitors, including Commander-in-Chief Eli Torrance, who came from Boston at the conclusion of the encampment held there.

Department Commander Moles called the meeting to order and the business began with the selection of committees, the most important of which were the council of administration and those for the Women's Relief Corps and the Sons of Veterans.

The report of Department Commander Moles embraced a variety of topics relating to the standing of the order, both financially and physically. It showed that there are now 1715 members in this state in good standing, a loss of 51 from last year, as against [illegible] the previous year.

The work done by the Women's Relief Corps during the past year should receive the highest commendation of all, for the great work the members have done to relieve the sufferings and distress of comrades and their families. A touching reference was made in connection with the last national encampment at Cleveland, when the news of the assassination of President McKinley reached them. In conclusion he urged all comrades to do their utmost [illegible] to have passed a law prohibiting the use of the American flag for advertising purposes.

The other officers also made reports. At noon the encampment took a recess and will elect officers this afternoon.

The Women's Relief Corps, Department of Rhode Island, met in annual session in this city today. The attendance was large and a keen interest was taken in the proceedings. The president, Mrs. Prentiss, called the meeting to order. A variety of reports were submitted, chief among which were those of the president, senior and junior vice presidents, and secretary and treasurer.

The conduct of the affairs of the corps during the past year, the help given and the means to be adopted in future which will best serve the purpose of the order were discussed at length. From a financial point the past year had been a successful one and the membership had increased.

Mrs. Eli Torrance, wife of the commander-in-chief, and Mrs. Calista Jones of Bradford, Vt., the national president, delivered addresses.

The report of the secretary, Mrs. [illegible], showed a membership of [illegible] at the beginning of the year, and proved that the department is in excellent condition. After listening to these reports the members adjourned at noon for luncheon.

At 1.30 o'clock the convention reconvened again, with the election of officers, in which Mrs. Harriet Ford of this city was elected president. The afternoon was devoted to the election and to the reports of the executive board, the council meeting and of the department inspector, Mrs. Julia P. Mason.

REPORTS RECEIVED.

Decision to Double the Membership of the Society.

Second Day's Session of the Woman's Suffrage Association.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—At the [illegible] session of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association, [illegible] ... the calling to order of the [illegible] convention, the [illegible] ... [illegible] of the cause of woman's suffrage was discussed. Mrs. [illegible] Hare of New York [illegible] ... that woman's enfranchisement would come just the same if there was no organization, that it would come through the process of evolution.

Mrs. Catt said she would be glad if a resolution would be introduced in the convention to double the membership and thereby set everybody to work. Two years ago, Mrs. Catt explained, after the convention had adjourned a request was sent throughout the nation to try to double the membership, but some felt that it did not receive the inspiration it would have had had the convention endorsed it.

The members at once acted upon the suggestion and declared it to be the sense of the organization that all should join in an effort to double the membership.

When the association project was called to order by President Catt for its second day's session there was but a slight falling off in the attendance, notwithstanding the intensely cold weather.

Reports from the committee on [illegible] board of auditors and the corresponding secretary were read and approved. The report of Harriet Taylor Upton, treasurer, was then submitted, and showed the financial condition of the association to be as follows:

The receipts for the year were $[illegible] ... [illegible] ... [illegible]

Susan B. Anthony at this point stated that she had a little scheme for getting some money out of Congress. It was that when Mrs. Catt spoke before the committee of Congress Tuesday of next week she should deliver a portion of her annual address, and then ask "leave to print." By this means, she said, the government will print the entire speech and it can be sent under government frank to every state of the union.

Miss Upton announced that the railroads had granted an unusual concession, in extending the date of the tickets to February 28.

Mrs. French of Rhode Island gave notice of an amendment to the bylaws, providing that whenever [illegible] of any state petition the executive committee that any such question shall be referred to the states for consideration, such question shall be so referred, and if a majority of the states vote in favor of the same it shall become a law.

Henry B. Blackwell, chairman of the committee on Presidential suffrage, urged every woman in every state to petition her legislature asking for the right to vote for Presidential electors.

RETURNING CALLS.

Day's Program of the Hohenzollern's Commander.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—Rear Admiral Count Von Baudissin, commander of the German imperial yacht Hohenzollern, began early today to pay return calls to the city officials and army and navy officers whose representatives were received on the Hohenzollern yesterday. The rear admiral, in the full dress uniform of the German navy, accompanied by an aide and the German consul, General Buenz, went to the navy yard to pay his respects to Rear Admiral Barker.

Count Von Baudissin was received at the navy yard by Commander West and Captain Coghlan with a company of marines and a salute was fired. As soon as formal greetings had been exchanged the distinguished visitor was conducted to the residence of the commandant of the yard, where he was presented to Admiral Barker. The party then visited various points of interest in the yard, and accompanied by Admiral Barker started for Governor's island to make a formal call on Major General Brooke.

Colonial Secretary Makes an Appeal for National Support.

LONDON, Feb. 13.—This metropolis bestowed its highest distinction on Joseph Chamberlain, the colonial secretary today, when at the guild hall it conferred on him the freedom of the city, in a gold casket. Mrs. Chamberlain, who was Miss Mary Endicott of Peabody, Mass., accompanied the colonial secretary, and they were greeted on their arrival with a fanfare of trumpets. Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain were conducted to the library, where they were received by the lord mayor, Sir Joseph C. Dimsdale, and the lady mayoress. The hall was crowded, among those present being the colonial secretary's political colleagues and adherents, who duly applauded the recipient of the city's freedom. The address in connection with the presentation congratulated Mr. Chamberlain on the services he had rendered to the nation during the last 25 years, dwelling specially on the way in which he had welded the colonies together.

In replying, Mr. Chamberlain disclaimed any intention of making political capital out of the occasion, but he said he thought he might, in behalf of the government, make an appeal for national support. The government had

FAMOUS CATTLE PAINTER.

Death of Thomas Sidney Cooper Robs the Royal Academy of Its Oldest Member.

The death of Thomas Sidney Cooper who had exhibited at the Royal Academy for 67 consecutive years, robs the Royal Academy of England of its oldest member and takes from the English nation one of the greatest cattle painters that she ever possessed. The life of Mr. Cooper was one which almost approaches a romance. He was born in 1803, in St. Peter's street, Canterbury, Kent. His parents were of humble position, and in the memoirs of his life, which Mr. Cooper wrote some 12 years ago, he tells of the hard struggle which his father and mother had to maintain the large family of which he was a member. There was in those days no free education, and, as can be imagined, the learning imparted to the youngster was not great. He was went to wander, he was never tired of telling every one he came in contact with, into the precincts of the old cathedral and there draw upon the stones. His studies attracted some attention, but there was no kind philanthropist to help him, and he was often scolded for having remained so long from home, and more often than not went hungry owing to his devotion to his studies.

Soon after he had passed his tenth year he went to work. He was apprenticed to a coach painter. In his spare time he studied hard in painting from life, and took up more especially the painting of cattle. He loved to wander in the valley of the Stour, a river which runs through the old cathedral city, and many of his most famous pictures depict various scenes in the marsh through which the Stour wends its way. The young man soon tired of coach painting and afterward joined a theatrical company, who engaged him to paint their scenery. It was then that more notice was taken of his ability, and gradually he became well known in the old town of Canterbury.

In 1833 he sent his first picture to the Academy, and it was accepted. Its title was "Tunford Farm," and the artist then and there declared that if ever he was in a position to do so he would buy an estate which was near to the old farmhouse and where he could see the river Stour. His desire was not long afterward gratified, for in a few years his paintings sold for such prices that he was soon a rich man. He bought his now famous estate and drew the plans of the house himself. He named it Vernon Holme, and it was here for the last 50 years or more that all his work had been done. He was, besides being an artist, a practical farmer and breeder of stock, and his thoroughbred cattle and sheep are well known throughout agricultural England. He painted from actual life, and his models were his own particular breeds of cattle and sheep. His house was near the old Roman road leading from London to Dover, just out of Canterbury, and his studio a large, spacious room on the ground floor. Here he might almost daily have been seen at work.

Right up to the end he worked at his canvases, and only last year he exhibited four—namely, "Spring," "Summer," "Autumn" and "Winter." There was one peculiarity about his pictures, and that was that he never showed an animal's foot. It has been said that that was the only point of an animal he could never master. Whether that is true or not, the fact remains that hardly without exception either the feet of the various animals painted by him are hidden in the marshy grass or in the case of a prone beast or sheep the feet are doubled under it.

Never was an artist copied more than Sidney Cooper, and in his memoirs he says that so many requests did he receive that he was obliged to make a charge of two guineas for certifying that the work submitted to him was his own. His income by this means was considerably augmented. He amassed thousands of pounds. One of his first acts was to purchase the house in which he was born. After building a fine art school, he presented it to the city, where at present it is maintained by the authorities. Here scholarships are yearly offered to the scholars of elementary schools, and they are thus enabled to have the benefit of the instruction of a first-class artist. Some of the students in his school have already gained names for themselves, and Mr. Cooper was the first, when a likely student was discovered, to invite him or her to Vernon Holme, to receive lessons from his patron personally. Mr. Cooper also bought the old theatre in which he did his first scenic painting and built on the site a structure worthy of the town. He was one of the original founders of the "Old Stagers," an amateur theatrical society, which enlivens the famous Canterbury Cricket Week, and on the occasion of the celebration of their jubilee in 1892 he painted a drop scene for them which in the open market would probably bring $5,000.

Having, as he often said, been poor himself once, he never forgot the fact. He was most liberal in his gifts to relief funds, and nobody was turned from his door hungry. He was the recipient of many begging letters, and often told a story that he was once addressed as the occupant of "Vermin Hole." He will be greatly missed, therefore, by the poor of his native city, which, it was his boast, was the finest and most beautiful town he knew of.

In August last, in spite of his advanced age, he went to London, and at Marlborough House the King invested him with the decoration of a member of the Victorian Order, greatly to the delight of the inhabitants of Canterbury.

The veteran artist attributed his longevity to regular living. He believed in the old maxim of "Early to bed and early to rise." He rose at 7 and was never up, except on special occasions, after 9. He always [illegible] Scotch whiskey at lunch and dinner [illegible] before going to bed. He was twice married, and his second wife survives him. Last September his eldest son, Thomas Sidney Cooper, Jr., [illegible] his aged father, an artist, died [illegible] the second son by his second wife, Neville Cooper, who is a well known sportsman, being a cricketer, golf player [illegible] shot, succeeds to his father's wealth and estate.

DEER THAT SEEK PROTECTION

Some time ago [illegible] county citizen, [illegible] the newspapers about a young deer, pursued by dogs, that [illegible] Main village and [illegible] sought the protection of a boy in the street. That might seem to be an amazing story, but to any one who has lived where wild deer abound and [illegible] served their nature it is an incident by no means uncommon.

"Every woodman knows that although the wild deer is the most timid of animals and dreads intensely the sight or scent of man, the female deer, when wounded and pressed by hunter or hound, or when pressed closely and as yet unhurt, will seek the protection of human beings or their habitations. Buck fawns will also seek such protection, but no buck that has come to the dignity of horns will show such a disposition; at least none to my knowledge have ever done so.

"The strange part of this disposition on the part of does and fawns is that they plainly ask for the protection they seek. The most striking instance of this I ever knew was that of the splendid doe that sought refuge from danger at the hamlet of Cooley, in Sullivan county.

"A. G. Welch of that place was eating his supper when he saw the doe come bounding from the woods into his dooryard. He hurried to the door, and the doe trotted straight to him and would have entered the house, but Welch was so startled that he slammed the door in the deer's face.

"The deer then went to a window and looked appealingly through. The animal was panting heavily, and was plainly very tired, but the door was not opened for it to enter, and it departed.

"From Welch's place the doe went to Melvin Carley's, about half a mile away. Carley was sitting in his kitchen, and hearing a noise looked up and saw the deer standing at a window, rubbing the pane with its nose, and looking longingly in at Carley, who, being an experienced hunter, knew at once that the deer was fleeing from dogs or hunters.

"He went out, and the deer followed him, or rather walked close by his side to the barn, where he locked it up. Once in the barn the deer lay down, so nearly run to death had it been. It had been shot in the back and on the leg.

"Carley fed the deer and doctored its wounds, and when it was sound and well again he offered it its liberty, but the grateful beast refused to take it, and it is still in Carley's possession, although its rescue occurred two years ago. As it was a violation of the Game law to have a deer in his possession, Carley had to get a special permit from the game protector to give the shelter to the deer that the deer insisted on having.

"I know of an instance in which a fawn, pursued by dogs, ran into a farmhouse and jumped into the lap of the farmer's wife, who was peeling apples in the kitchen. That fawn remained on the farm, and became such a pet that when she disappeared one fall there was great lamentation in the family, and a good reward was offered for her recovery.

"As no trace of her could be found, it was at last concluded that she had been killed by some ruthless person. But this was not the case, for the doe re-appeared one day in the following spring, with a pretty little spotted fawn by her side, and there was great rejoicing.

"The fawn was a buck fawn, and along in the next summer it went away and never came back. The doe, however, never left the farm again and died on it, at a good age."

THE BANNER POTATO CROP.

[Bangor despatch to Boston Transcript.]

For six months past long trains loaded with potatoes have been coming down from Aroostook, Maine's "garden county," bound for all parts of the United States east of the Mississippi, and for three or four months yet the shipment will continue, for the 1901 crop in the north county was a record-breaker. Shipments began August 1, and from that date to and including January 31 of this year, Aroostook has sent away 2,7[illegible] bushels of as good potatoes as ever came out of the ground. This is a gain of 393,7[illegible] bushels over the shipments in the corresponding period of the previous year. In the month of January, 1902, shipments amounted to 523,638 bushels, an increase of 1[illegible] bushels over January, 1901.

The Aroostook potato crop of 1901 is estimated at 5,000,000 to 5,500,000 bushels, and railroad men estimate the total shipments this season at 4,500,000 bushels, which would be 1,500,000 in excess of shipments from the crop of 1900. Many Aroostook potatoes are sent to the Southern states for seed, and last year Texas bought a large quantity for food; prices have been so high this year, however, that the Texas people have gone to Michigan and Colorado for their supplies. The transportation of the Aroostook crop thus far has required about 5,000 cars, which, together, would make a train over 50 miles long.

NEED OF SOBRIETY IN THE WORKSHOP.

[New Bedford Standard.]

Notwithstanding so much is said about the desirability of introducing German drinking customs into this country, there are Germans who would like to see some of those customs abolished at home. Several experiments have already been made in educating workingmen to dispense with the morning and afternoon recesses for beer, and one firm making electrical apparatus in Berlin has found an increase of ten per cent in the product per man since the change was made. In America, the drawback of using intoxicants while at work would be considered so much a matter of course that scarcely anybody would think of introducing the German custom in this respect into the workshop.

One of the most potent influences in the promotion of sobriety in this country is found in the insistence in so many occupations on temperate men. Sometimes the railroad companies are spoken of as the greatest temperance agencies in the world. As a matter of self-interest and self-protection, they were forced to require that their employes should be sober men, and all who travel on railroads recognize the good sense and the justice of the requirement. But the managers of other industries find the same need, though human life is usually not so much at stake with them. Where expensive machinery must be operated, men with clear heads are indispensable; and all experience shows that it is more profitable all round to have sober workmen than an inebriate. Germany, it appears, has yet this lesson to learn—at least in some of her industries.

TROUBLE FEARED IN CUBA.

Delay of Congress Likely to Have Unfavorable Effect on the Political Situation.

(Washington despatch to New York Tribune.)

It is beginning to be feared in Washington that the failure of Congress promptly to respond to the urgent demands for commercial relief to Cuba may have an unfavorable and discouraging effect on political affairs in the island. As is well known, Cuba is now on the eve of undergoing a radical political transformation. This phase of the situation is causing some uneasiness in the Senate and the War Department. February 24, the electors recently chosen by popular vote will meet in Havana to ratify the election of General Tomas Estrada Palma as the first president of the republic. They will also elect at the same time the vice president and the senate. This action should mark the beginning of the end of American control of the government and occupancy of the island of Cuba. Whether it will in fact is a question which is being asked with some anxiety.

When the Cuban electors have chosen their executive and completed the election of their congress—the house having been elected last month—it will be the duty of the present military governor of Cuba, General Wood, to proclaim the new government and convene the Congress. The first Monday in April will be the day set for the convening of the Congress.

The first duty of the Congress will be to ratify a treaty with the United States, embodying in permanent form the stipulations of the Platt amendment. An ordinance of the new Cuban constitution provides for the making of the treaty, but it will have to be ratified by the Cuban senate before the deal is effectually closed. That treaty will embody the following agreements:

That Cuba shall never enter into a treaty with a foreign nation which will impair her independence; that no debt or obligation shall be assumed which the revenues of the island will be inadequate to liquidate; that Cuba shall give consent for the United States to intervene to preserve the independence of the island; that the acts of the temporary military government shall be ratified; that existing sanitary plans shall be carried out as far as possible; that the title to the Isle of Pines shall be determined by a future treaty, that the government of Cuba shall sell or lease to the United States lands necessary for coaling or naval stations.

The uneasiness which is felt in Washington over the outlook for the future rests on the possibility of the Cubans, smarting out of the desperate industrial and economic situation threatened in the island. It has been said that the prospect is very alarming in that respect, and many well informed people here fear that it will react unfavorably on the political negotiations.

It is the earnest desire of every man in Congress who has been in any way connected with the dramatic series of events designed for Cuba's enfranchisement to put the Cubans in possession of their own at the earliest moment possible. They would regard it as a national calamity, a disparagement of the national honor, if political freedom should be given to Cubans and at the same time a commercial situation precipitated upon them which would render that freedom worthless and virtually force annexation as an alternative to industrial ruin.

Laura—Yes, you see she told him her father had lost all his wealth just to test his love for her.

Ada—And then?

Laura—Well, she will know better next time.—[Glasgow Evening Times.

Maid—She didn't say nothing, mum; but she looked sort of relieved like.—[Boston Transcript.

Housekeeper—Ice will be very cheap next summer, won't it?

Ice Man—Well I don't know, mum. You see, we've got a good deal of dear ice left over from the year before, and we'll have to sell that first, because it might spoil, you know, and I'm afraid by the time the old stock is gone the cheap ice will all be melted.—[New York Weekly.

WU TING-FANG'S REGARD FOR TRUTH.

The reporter who lied to the Chinese minister at Washington, Wu Ting-fang, about his salary, no doubt deluded himself with the thought—if he gave the matter a thought at all—that it was a "white lie" that would hurt nobody. But let us see the sequel:

On the first occasion, when he called to interview the minister, he was asked what salary he received. "One hundred and fifty dollars a week," glibly replied the youth. "It is too much. It is altogether too much," said the more candid than polite Wu Ting-fang. "You are not worth more than $25 a week."

The Chinese minister, it is said, learned later, through other newspaper men, that the reporter had not spoken the truth, and that, instead of $150 a week, he received but $20. Consequently, when he again presented himself at the Chinese legation for information for his paper, he was curtly dismissed by Wu Ting-fang with these words: "You lied to me about your salary. If you will lie about such a thing as that, you will lie about anything. I do not trust you. I have nothing to say to you. I want to revise my former estimate of your value. Instead of being worth $25 a week, you are not worth anything, sir."

[illegible]

There is no exaggeration in the statement of America's good works in Cuba, which was made in a special Washington correspondence. It would be difficult, indeed, for any one to overestimate the benefits which have accrued to that island as a result of United States occupation and management, politically, socially, intellectually, morally and in respect to sanitary conditions, the [illegible] has been all but [illegible] There is probably no more noteworthy and more creditable [illegible] history of the dealings of such [illegible] nation [illegible]

We have done all this, save the one [illegible] and for completing, crowning and safeguarding what we have done. We have [illegible] every serious evil of the old Spanish administration, save [illegible] [illegible] the [illegible] Cuba [illegible] Spain were [illegible] Cuba was Spain's "milch cow," [illegible] for Spain's pecuniary benefit, not for her own. Her revolts were against Spanish tariffs and commercial systems. When a dozen years ago Spain was induced to accept the [illegible] reciprocity [illegible] by Harrison, Blaine and McKinley prosperity prevailed in the island, and with it peace and contentment. The moment that arrangement was abrogated the island flamed up in revolution.

There is no exaggeration, then, in what one Washington correspondent also adds—that failure to relieve Cuba's industrial and commercial ill would menace us with the undoing of all the good that we have thus far done. The economical question is absolutely fundamental. Without prosperity for her chief industries Cuba is ruined. If she cannot find a market for her sugar she cannot maintain her schools, her sanitary system or her improved roads. She cannot even maintain her free and independent government. The closing of the sugar market against her would mean the opening of the gates of chaos. That is the simple truth, and it is well that it should be borne in mind.

LAND ALONG THE CANAL.

It is fortunate that both the Isthmian canal bill and the treaties with the Central American governments having jurisdiction of the proposed routes are to be before the Senate at the same time this session, as the interests involved are closely intertwined. The land question is one which ought to command considerable attention from the Senate before the final die is cast in this matter. As nearly as can be ascertained, real estate speculators in Nicaragua have already got hold of most of the land along the proposed route of the canal which there is the slightest likelihood of our government's needing during the period of construction, or for warehouses, administrative offices, machinery plants, etc., in operating the canal.

Unquestionably we shall find that land which would have gone begging at [illegible] cents an acre when the enterprise first took definite shape, will be held at not less than [illegible] soon as we really need it. It is a common error to suppose that the Spanish-Americans are a [illegible] of people [illegible] [illegible] as a matter of fact, they are extremely canny when it comes to a transaction of this kind.

The Panama route is subject to [illegible] [illegible] would need in its work, and all of that [illegible] under the terms of the [illegible] purchase. This is an item which must not be overlooked in estimating the [illegible] of [illegible] Nothing [illegible] Panama except the [illegible] we must pay the Colombia [illegible] right of way. In Nicaragua we shall [illegible] to pay and [illegible] the uncertain [illegible] the cost of [illegible] [illegible] is still all a matter of guesswork.

Another subject which will require some thought is the payment of damages to the owners of property adjacent to the [illegible] [illegible]

THE WEATHER.

BOSTON, Feb. 13. 8 A. M.—Forecast for Boston and vicinity—Fair tonight and Friday; somewhat colder tonight; fresh to brisk northwesterly winds.

WEATHER CONDITIONS.

Scattered light snows have occurred during the past 24 hours in parts of New England, the lake region and northern Rocky mountain states, but with this exception fair weather has prevailed over the United States, and today it is generally clear except [illegible] local cloudiness at scattered stations. The area of low barometer that covered Rocky mountain districts Wednesday morning has moved south to Texas and the Southwest and [illegible] little energy and slight intensity. The [illegible] of low pressure central over the Gulf of St. Lawrence and covering New England and the provinces has remained stationary but increased in intensity, with lowest pressure reports of this morning of [illegible] inches at St. Johns, Newfoundland. At 8 a. m. in New England the temperature ranged from the vicinity of zero in interior parts to near 20 degrees on the coast. At New York it was 20, Washington 18, New Orleans 52, St. Louis 18, Chicago 22, Bismarck 16 and San Francisco 48.

BARBERS' BILL PASSED.

Again Serves to Arouse the Senators' Eloquence.

[Special despatch to the News.]

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 13.—The senators had another spurt of oratory today and again it was the barbers' bill that stirred them up. They had a lively discussion over the various sections, and finally left them practically as they were and passed the bill by a vote of 19 to 7.

The only other matter of interest was the announcement by the governor of the appointment of the members of the joint special committee on a permanent resting place for the body of General Nathanael Greene. The members are Senators Horton of Cranston and Paulhan of Pawtucket and Representatives Easton of Providence, Brown of Newport and Shefield of Bristol.

The house had a quiet and short session.

The committee on public institutions reported back the report of the factory inspectors and it was sent to the committee on education.

Mr. Clarke of Newport presented a resolution for the payment of the bill of William Brightman of Newport for $1, and it was referred to the joint committee on accounts and claims.

Mr. Johnson of Foster introduced an amendment providing that no town shall assess on its ratable property in any one year in excess of one and a half per cent of the ratable value, except for paying indebtedness, interest, sinking funds and extraordinary expenses caused by the elements. The amendment was referred to the judiciary committee.

The judiciary committee reported back the act changing the date of the town election in Little Compton and it was placed on the calendar.

Mr. Holden announced that there would be a joint Republican caucus Tuesday morning next at 11:30 o'clock for the nomination of a candidate for lieutenant governor.

Both houses adjourned to Friday morning at 11 o'clock.

NO FURTHER ACTION NEEDED.

Appointment of Judges Stiness and Blodgett Permanent.

[Special despatch to the News.]

PROVIDENCE, Feb. 13.—Since the appointment of supreme court justices by the General Assembly in May 1900, the appointments being those of Judge Stiness as chief justice and of John T. Blodgett as associate justice, there has been a question whether the appointments were permanent or must be renewed at the expiration of the terms of those whose places the appointees fill. Governor Kimball appealed to the supreme court for a decision, and today received an opinion to the effect that no further appointment is necessary. The opinion is signed by Associate Justices Tillinghast, Rogers, Douglas and Dubois, the members of the court whose appointment was in question taking no part in making the decision.

BELONG IN NEWPORT.

Two of the "Polite" Burglars Have Been Under Arrest in This City.

From information received from Jersey City it appears that two of the men under arrest there for participation in the "polite" burglaries, so called, are Newporters, the sons of a man now residing in this city and working daily at his usual vocation, as he has for years. They are Thomas J. Croughan, aged 27, and Louis, aged 24 years. The former is said to have served in the army during the war, and later to have been with Buffalo Bill's Company, while Louis is reported as a chauffeur.

Thomas was arrested here November 26, 1895, by officer McCormick, charged with breaking and entering in the night-time the shop of Colonel J. H. Wetherell in the rear of the Ocean House, and the larceny therefrom of harnesses and other articles of value, which he hid in his father's shop, some under the floor. He was sentenced at the following April session of the court to six months' imprisonment.

The younger boy, Louis, was arrested in October, 1893, on suspicion of having stolen a box of tickets from the Opera House. He was then but 12 years old. The tickets were recovered, the house lost nothing and the case never came to trial.

JAMESTOWN.

[Regular correspondence of the News.]

The Flag day exercises in the schools here were very interesting, a number of the children's parents manifesting their interest in the schools by attending. The programs were carefully prepared and well executed, the musical part being under the direction of Mrs. A. L. Champlin.

In addition to the songs and recitations by the children, there were addresses by Messrs. Charles Clarke and C. E. Hervey of Newport and G. A. Clarke of this place, who told of their experiences during the civil war. The program for Mr. Barry's and Miss Clarke's rooms was as follows:

Song, "Hail, Rhode Island," schools; "The Name of Lincoln," six girls; song, "Soul of our Republic," schools; essay, "Washington and Lincoln," C. Mackenzie; reading, "Lincoln's Gettysburg Address," G. Carr; song, "[illegible] the Flag," three boys; "Uncle Sam's Remarks," song, "Another Star on Old Glory," three girls; solo, "Sword of Bunker Hill," Foster Knowles; recitation, "Our Flag," R. Anthony; drill, boys of Mr. Barry's class, "Red, White and Blue," schools; "America," schools.

The following program was given by Miss Reynolds's and Miss Stevens's classes.

Song, "Hail, Rhode Island!" recitation, "I'm the Little Red Stamp," song, "Raise the Banner!" recitation, "Our Country," Lillie Ellis; flag exercise; song, "Nature's Winter Garden;" "Lincoln," seven boys; "Our American Flag and Stamp," a tale of the flag; song, "Star Spangled Banner;" recitation, Freddie Morrell; recitation, "A Little Boy's Speech," song, "Flag Song," recitation, Homer Newman; song, "Red, White and Blue," "President's Book," "The Minute Men;" recitation "A True Fairy Tale;" "Sketch of Lincoln," school; song, "The Pilot's Song;" "Thirteen Little Colonies," recitation, William Knowles; a salute; three cheers; "America."

The Parish Aid Society of St. Matthew's Church met last evening at the residence of Mrs. William H. Allen, a large number of members being present. The next meeting will be held at Mrs. Louis W. Anthony's.

CHAMBERLAIN HONORED.

two great, national objects in view—to establish beyond question British authority in South Africa and to maintain the unity of the empire. Both objects were invented in the South African war. The war would always be memorable because it had called out a greater military effort than ever before asked from Great Britain, and because it had shown to friend and foe the potential strength and almost inexhaustible resources of the empire. He had not thought it necessary to stoop to meet the imputations of national greed, lust of territory or personal ambition and criminal motives suggested by the insignificant minority since the war had the approval of sister nations across the seas.

In regard to the immediate causes of the war, continued Mr. Chamberlain, it was not only impossible for a great nation to allow its subjects to be humiliated or oppressed, its engagements broken and black faces oppressed; but the very existence of the empire was involved, and the government was pledged to continue it until the danger from which they had escaped was forever averted.

After a reference to shallow observers abroad who foretold Great Britain's downfall, Mr. Chamberlain concluded with paying a glowing tribute to the colonies which, throughout the war, had demonstrated their intention to share the obligations as well as the privileges of the empire. It was a long step towards the consolidation which was now within measure of practical accomplishment. He did not envy the statesman who would be willing to compromise the issue for which the empire fought.

The nation was not vindictive to its enemies. If they surrendered today they would be welcomed as friends tomorrow. The expulsion of those who caused the war was only a measure of self-preservation. Similarly, immunity for treason was not humanity but was cruelty to the loyalists and to the Boers, who, now in thousands, recognizing the futility of the struggle, were aiding Great Britain to end the war. In justice to those who had died, and in security for the survivors, they must make the Boers recognize that they are defeated, and take from them the lowest possibility of repeating the attempt. To do otherwise would be to invite the contempt of foreign countries, whose affection it seemed impossible for them to gain, but whose respect, at any rate, they were able to secure.

A luncheon followed the reply of Mr. Chamberlain to the presentation address.

TELLER WILL VOTE SUPPLIES.

Cannot Wish Disaster to Befall the American Arms.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—Shortly after the opening of today's session of the Senate a concurrent resolution was agreed to, directing the Secretary of War to report whether there is danger of the Mississippi river cutting through the space between the river and the St. Francis river near Walnut Bend, Ark., and if such danger exists to present an estimate of cost to avert the danger.

A resolution offered by Mr. McEnery of Louisiana, directing the Secretary of War to inform the Senate what railroads are being built in Cuba, and by whom and by what authority, was adopted.

A resolution offered by Mr. Gallinger of New Hampshire, directing the Postmaster General to furnish the Senate a complete list of the rural free delivery division employes who it was included in the classified service was adopted. When they were appointed and whether subjected to examination are questions to be answered under the resolution.

A bill was passed vesting certain circuit and district court powers in the Spanish claims commission.

It was agreed to consider the oleomargarine bill tomorrow, and then Mr. Teller resumed his speech on the Philippine tariff bill. He thought private soldiers could not be blamed for such cruelties on the Filipinos as are described in newspapers, when men of culture attempt to justify, on the plea of war, the cruel sedition laws. He urged the government to say frankly what it proposes ultimately to do with the Filipinos. But after all he could not bring himself to wish disaster to befall American arms and expected to vote for the army appropriation.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 13.—The session of the House today was consumed in the transaction of miscellaneous business. Several bills were passed by unanimous consent, including the following: To construct a lighthouse keeper's dwelling at Calumet harbor, Ill., at a cost of $7,500.

DOMINION PARLIAMENT OPENS.

Lord Minto in His Speech Refers to the Assassination of McKinley.

OTTAWA, Ont., Feb. 13.—There were the usual ceremonies at the opening of the Dominion Parliament today. The weather was excellent and the attendance was large. Lord Minto, the governor general, in the speech from the throne, delivered in the senate chamber, first referred to the prosperity of the country and the bountiful harvest. A paragraph was devoted to the royal visit of last year, and the cordial reception given to the Prince and Princess of Wales. The speech expressed the sorrow of the Canadian people over the assassination of President McKinley, and a bill is promised, similar to the one now before Congress, to punish more adequately those who incite, by speech or otherwise, fanatics to the perpetration of such horrible crimes.

miles in length. Lord Kitchener, who personally directed the operations, was in close touch, day and night, with every detail of the movements. The Boers, though hard pressed, shrank from attempting to cross the railroad, where armored trains, equipped with powerful searchlights, patrolled the line throughout the night. The train lights were supplemented by stationary searchlights, and the spectacular effect, as witnessed from the trains, was striking. By the side of the railroad were the dark forms of men lying in trenches, or standing dense sentry duty. The gloom of the moonless night was intermittently relieved by the sweep of the indefatigable searchlights.

The battle at Heilbron, Orange River Colony, opened Friday [illegible] at 11 o'clock Saturday morning. Throughout the five hours a fearful ring of fire, from rifles, cannon and [illegible] blazed along the British [illegible] from [illegible] to Heilbron, [illegible] away to Lindley and [illegible] Kroonstad, in holding Dewet's Boers. The Boers made repeated attempts to break out of the circle of troops. From various positions, behind rocks and fences, the Boers kept up a vigorous fusillade, hoping to find a weak spot in the line. Simultaneously others charged, but against Lincoln were the [illegible] repulsed, leaving dead, wounded and prisoners in the hands of the British.

At the outset of the preparations the Boers realized that the operations were not merely an ordinary "drive" but a movement threatening them with total annihilation, and General Dewet assembled his whole force and discussed the situation with the commanders, with the result that the Boers were split up into three forces. Thursday night 700 Boers, headed by Van Colliers, rushed a force of the Imperial Light Horse, yelling: "Storm, burghers!" About 100 Boers got through, but the remainder, encountering a tremendous fire, were turned back.

Friday night's conflict ebbed and swelled over an area of 40 to 50 miles, in which the long hunted, harassed and desperate men endeavored to find outlets. The Boers, at one spot, got within 20 yards of the British guns, but on the barbed wire balked. Close fire forced the Englishmen to retreat.

The attack never ceased. Aided by the electric searchlights, the British narrowed the surrounding territory with shrapnel shell and Maxim bullets. In the northern section the Boers made a desperate effort to break through. Collecting a number of cattle, the Boers drove them down on the British lines. Bending low in their saddles the Boers rode among the cattle, making it impossible to distinguish them in the darkness. The British pickets opened a terrible fire, and the Boers were everywhere met with a relentless hail of bullets.

A long line of flame, crackling like burning wood, ran up and down the firing line, nearly 30 miles in length, as the armored trains flashed their searchlights over miles of country. The reports of the quick-firing guns along the entrenched line and the booming of the field guns and pompoms sounded very deep amid the sharp crackling of the musketry, while the Heilbron fort contributed to the universal din with the deep roar of its naval gun. This lasted for some [illegible] hours, when gradually the rattle died down until the only crack of single shots was heard. Then all was again quiet.

The Boers' attempt to break the British circle had failed. A few of them succeeded in crossing the line, and among them was General Dewet.

KNIGHTS OF COLUMBUS JUNIORS BEAT REGULARS.

Recently, when the pool team of the Knights of Columbus Club succeeded, rather unexpectedly, in winning the last match with the Progressive Club team, some of the other pool sharps in the K. C. Club began to feel that perhaps the best players had not been selected to uphold the pool reputation of the club. This idea took a definite form when a team was organized, called the K. C. Juniors, and a challenge was issued to the regular team to play a match.

At first it was suggested that a supper should go with the match, but when, last night, it was rather hastily decided to play there was nothing but glory to go to the winners, and no loss was sustained by the losers. The Juniors proved to be winners, taking three out of five matches. The jubilation of the Juniors can be partially imagined, but they did not get the supper because they did not agree to it. Another match may be looked for.

AN ANCIENT BILLIARD TABLE.

There is a billiard table in London at the present moment that can boast of a lifetime of two centuries and a long acquaintance with men who have made history. It belonged originally to Louis XIV, passed into the possession of Napoleon I, and now, in its old age, is on exhibition in Soho square. This [illegible] table is smaller than an English table. The body of the table is a block of oak, weighing ten hundredweight, covered with a cloth of [illegible]. The frame of the table is of [illegible] wood, and the six pockets, perhaps the most striking feature of the table, are reproductions in bronze of quaint hideous old gargoyles. When the ball falls into the pocket, the lower jaw of the gargoyle drops, and the ball is forced into its mouth. It is a clever piece of old mechanism.

IN A SINKING CONDITION.

Two Masted Schooner Flying Distress Signals off Cape May.

CAPE MAY, N. J., Feb. 13.—An unknown two-masted schooner is in distress about five miles off this city. The schooner is flying signals in her rigging but they cannot be read from here. The crew of the Cold Spring life saving station has gone to the rescue.

The schooner's boom is broken off and some of her fore rigging is gone. She is evidently in a sinking condition. A yawl boat is alongside, and it is thought it has been launched by the crew in order to save themselves in case the life guards are unable to reach them. A gale is blowing along the coast.

REPORT INCORRECT.

No Combination of the Leading Express Companies Contemplated.

NEW YORK, Feb. 13.—The despatch received from San Francisco, quoting the call to the effect that a merger of the leading express companies, including the American, Adams, United States and Wells Fargo companies, might be arranged, was today shown to President Weir of the Adams Express Company. Mr. Weir said the report was not correct. Such a thing had not been contemplated, he said, so far as he knew.

ADMIRAL SAMPSON'S DEATH NOT IMMINENT.

Dr. W. S. Nixon, medical inspector in the navy, who is the physician of Rear Admiral Sampson, said yesterday: "Admiral Sampson stands a good chance of living longer than many persons who are walking about the streets today. He has rallied from the slight attack of indigestion which he had the other day, and when I was at his house this morning he was preparing to dress and come down stairs.

"He comes down to his meals with regularity and eats the same food of which the other members of the family partake. He is by no means a well man, but the reports that he is in imminent danger of death are unfounded. I expect him to live for several months. It is probable that he will take to outdoor exercise again when the snow is [illegible] from the streets and pavements sufficiently to make walking safe. I expect, if the weather becomes fine, that he will be able to take a little exercise every day.

"I do not know from what quarter the recent reports that the admiral was at the point of death emanated. I notice that some of the New York papers have had him all but dead several times. It was also reported recently his physician was in constant attendance at his bedside. This is not true. I rarely visit him more than once a day. He is generally in good spirits, and of course is [illegible] the best of care."

THE HOUSE AN OPERA BUILT.

The Orchard—so called because it was originally an apple orchard—at New Rochelle, New York, is the summer home of Francis Wilson, the comic opera star. The ground was bought and a modest house started when the run of "The Merry Monarch" began. As the profits of that opera increased, the original plans were enlarged in one way and another, until a third of the returns from the opera had been expended. The house is of stone and stands on a terraced knoll. From the upper windows there is a fine wide view of Long Island Sound, and among the furnishings are a set of Chippendale chairs and a settee made from the elaborately carved pew doors [illegible] in Christ Church at Stratford-on-Avon and a chair given to Sir Edwin Landseer by Sir Walter Scott from his library at Abbotsford.

The Chicago & Alton railroad and the Illinois Central began to put them into effect yesterday. The other roads will begin today. FLORENCE, Col., Feb. 13.—The trouble between the Victor Fuel Company and the miners employed at its coal mines at Chandler, near this city, culminated in an attack on Japanese miners who had taken the places of the strikers and the demolition of the boarding-house occupied by the Japanese. The mob drove the Japanese out of the camp. The affair occurred after a meeting of the strikers at which it was decided to send an ultimatum to the Victor Fuel Company demanding the removal of the Japanese. DUE TO THE ANTI-TRUST LAW.

Nearly a Score of Insurance Companies to Leave Texas.

AUSTIN, Texas, Feb. 13.—Within the last three days a number of insurance companies which had been doing business in Texas informed Secretary of State Todd that they had withdrawn from the state, owing to the operation of the anti-trust act, which requires that the executive officer of each company shall make affidavit that it does not belong to any trust or organization which has for its object the fixing or maintaining of insurance rates. Nearly all these companies are European concerns. State Commissioner of Insurance Johnson has been advised that 11 insurance companies which did business in Texas last year have announced their intention of withdrawing from the state. This will make 18 insurance companies to leave the state on account of the anti-trust law enforcement. The suits recently instituted in Young county against four insurance companies for heavy penalties, for alleged violation of the anti-trust law, have caused these companies to resolve to leave the Texas field.

Stock Yards to be Established Near Portland, Ore.

PORTLAND, Ore., Feb. 13.—It has been decided by the Harriman lines to establish extensive stock yards on the peninsula between the Columbia and Willamette rivers, about four miles from this city. A tract of 100 acres of land has been bonded, and the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company has a spur almost completed to the proposed site of the yards. Both the Oregon Railroad & Navigation Company and the Southern Pacific will reach the yards, and it is stated that one of the large packing houses of Chicago will establish an extensive plant here.

TALK OF ANNEXATION.

Cuban Resolution Shocks Sugar Interests.

Senator Hanna Not Anxious for a Cabinet Place.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 12.—While it has not been probable that a majority of Congress would look with favor upon the resolution introduced by Representative Newlands of Nevada providing for the annexation of Cuba, yet the proposition has attracted a great deal of interest because so many people believe that the time is coming when Cuba will be a part of the United States. Annexation with absolute free trade between the United States and Cuba gives the beet and cane sugar interests a positive shock. Many of them believe that such action would mean the destruction of beet sugar manufacture in the United States, and just now these interests are strong enough to prevent annexation of the kind proposed by Mr. Newlands.

These interests want annexation, if it is brought about at all, to be upon the initiative of the Cubans and in such a way as the United States will have ample power to continue a tariff upon Cuban products without any violation of good faith or understanding. It is believed that once Cuban independence is fully established those who are in control will not voluntarily seek annexation unless they can secure the same terms given to Hawaii, which has absolute free trade. Mr. Newlands' proposition does not complicate the situation so as to prevent the granting of concessions to Cuba, but it does present another phase of the interesting situation growing out of the war with Spain.

In the debates that occur over the Philippines and even upon Alaska members of Congress complain of lack of information concerning the conditions and situation in the islands and the big territory, and it occurs to me that many years ago, before the days of railroads and telegraph, the same lack of information must have been felt when the far Northwest was being discussed. Of course the Philippines are reached by cable, and we really know a great deal about the islands, but Alaska is certainly a long way off and, without telegraphic communication, it is very hard to get accurate information from the upper latitudes. Besides, a mining country can change very suddenly, and between the time dispatches are sent [illegible] changes may occur. [illegible] time we will have direct cable communication with the Philippines [illegible] in connection with Alaska, or—who knows?—maybe the wireless methods will be all the vogue.

Some people are so sure that the department of commerce bill is to go through the House and become a law that they have begun speculating upon [illegible] to take the new cabinet portfolio. About the wildest guess I have heard was that which gave the seat to Senator Hanna. The Ohio Senator's term will continue during the present administration, and it would be folly to suppose that he would give up a Senatorship to take the last place in the cabinet. Besides, he has refused any place he wanted in the cabinet offered by his warm personal friend, the late President McKinley. Director of the Census Merriam has been mentioned for the place and would be a good selection. The present commissioner of labor, Carroll D. Wright, has also been mentioned, but, as he will probably be labor commissioner as long as he desires the place, it is not likely that he would accept a cabinet place.

The Senate must proceed with decorum when the venerable Senator from Alabama, Mr. Pettus, is in the chair. Usually the question and reply debates, especially when the discussion is pretty warm, proceed without the usual formal address to the chair and obtaining permission to interrupt. In fact, if the formal method were adopted there would be an end to colloquy. But Pettus rigidly enforces the rule. In one of the debates recently the Alabama Senator "called down" no less than four Senators, Bacon of Georgia, Foraker of Ohio, Tillman of South Carolina and Patterson of Colorado. [illegible] those who had to bow to rules. Upon Senator Patterson he was [illegible] severe, and after calling him to order and hammering with the gavel he declared with firmness, "The Senator from Colorado will take his seat."

Senator Burnham of New Hampshire is one of the most attentive of the new Senators. He is nearly always in the Senate and gives close attention to the debates. When not in the Senate, he is found in his committee room hard at work upon the correspondence which is really a burden for nearly every Senator. Senator Burnham is taking the modest course of a new Senator, and does not yet take part in the discussions. By tradition new Senators must not engage in the debates to any great extent during the first session. Of course if anything should come up in which their states are interested they are pardoned by the older Senators for speaking. Senator Burnham is taking the course that always insures future popularity—that is, by becoming personally well acquainted with his fellow Senators. Arthur W. Dunn.

"GENTLEMEN BURGLARS."

Thomas Croughan, Under Arrest, Says He Was Born in Newport.

NEW YORK, Feb. 12.—George Byrt, alleged by the police to be one of the "gentlemen burglars" who recently operated in Jersey City, was in the Centre street court today and was arraigned. He was captured by the [illegible]. And when arrested carried a revolver marked by candle drippings. He denied that he had any part in the operations of the polite burglars and said his name is Louis Croughan and that his home is at Providence, R. I.

Croughan's brother Thomas was arrested in Jersey City last night. When [illegible] a marriage certificate [illegible] and Miss [illegible] of New York [illegible] Friday. At the close of the war he [illegible] a Wild West show, and later he [illegible] and his brother became burglars and robbed a number of houses in Newark and Jersey City.

COLOR STYLES IN HORSES.

A Plain Sorrel in the Country Is Sold in New York City as a "Golden Chestnut."

[New York Post.]

It was a countryman who made the rather startling discovery that there are no sorrel horses in this city. He had come on from his native town—where the sorrel horse of his grandfathers is still in vogue—to buy a pair of carriage horses. In the course of his equine shopping hundreds of horses were shown to him and it was not until he had requested a dealer to bring out a pair that he had looked at earlier in the day that he made his discovery.

"Which pair was it?" asked the dealer.

"That sorrel and gray," explained the countryman. "Sorrel and gray," repeated the dealer, and for a time he remained silent as if in great perplexity of mind. "I guess you must mean that cross-matched pair—the golden chestnut and the [illegible] gray?" and when the pair were brought into the ring his surmise proved to be correct.

"If that 'golden chestnut' as you call him is not a sorrel, then I've never seen one," declared the countryman.

"Oh, that's all right," explained the dealer, "he's a sorrel—a beautiful sorrel at that—up where you come from; but in New York city—never! Why, he would eat his head off four times before we could sell him to a New Yorker as a sorrel. They won't stand for 'em. They don't like the name. It sounds too provincial for their taste. And you know as well as I do that even when we were boys the old sorrel had a reputation—'no bottom, no courage,' they used to say.

"It's a curious thing about a horse's color anyway—that is, so far as it influences his market value here in New York. This pair you are looking at now is a good illustration. Their color scheme is about as near the correct one as you could find—some buyers might want a blue instead of a flea-bitten gray to go with that golden chestnut, but there are just as many more who would prefer them as they stand. For ourselves, I'm almost willing to wager that we would never look twice at that gray horse if we were not influenced by the fashion that this city sets. In my native town—and I suppose the same is true of yours—we always considered an old freckled gray (they don't become 'flea-bitten' until they reach New York!) about the meanest and cheapest beast a man could ride behind. Here they are looked upon as the smartest thing in horseflesh that can be had. I've handled horses long enough to know that no good horse is a bad color; but for bottom and for wear and tear in all sorts of climates I'm ready to concede that that same old-fashioned freckled [illegible] them all.

"I know that you want a pair of horses that are considered the proper type and color here in New York, and are not going to be effected by what your neighbors say or what I say. But what would nine in every ten of your horse-fancying townspeople say if they saw a man driving a cross-matched pair? They would say he was color-blind. Take those men that travel through six counties with a pair of compasses in their pockets looking for a bay horse with a white star on his forehead or a four-inch white stocking on his off hind leg to match up with another bay horse with a white star or a four-inch stocking on his off hind leg; what would they say to the crazy quilt pairs that are sold here every day?

"I do not mean to imply that we city folks know more about horses than the countryman on the question of an animal's soundness. I should just as readily accept the opinion of a farmer who has been 'tinkerin' around hosses' all his life as that of a city veterinary who makes $[illegible] a year. When it comes to sacrificing uniformity in action and conformation, however, to a white star or a white stocking, I think we are wise where the countryman is foolish. I can't think now of any combination of horse colors that we could not put together and sell if the animals were evenly mated and had the same conformation. As for that sorrel horse, why, he's a 'golden chestnut' here for the same reason that the red-haired girl up in Cattaraugus county is a Titian blonde in New York. And you can't go wrong on them, sir," said the dealer, suddenly lapsing into his professional vernacular, "as sweet a going pair as you ever drove behind, bold, young, and cheerful, and both as sound as a brass bell."

ATHLETICS AND ATHLETICISM.

[Harper's Weekly.]

Have they really gone in for athletics too thoroughly in England? And is it right for somebody here at home to call our attention to the fact that we are tending to the same evil? Just at the moment when Englishmen are dying in South Africa, it does seem wrong that their brothers should be playing cricket at home. But, after all, there is not an Englishman who really stays away from war because he must play cricket, and those who, for one reason or another, do not or cannot go to the front would better be playing cricket than sitting at home and moping. And then, too, Englishmen and we here at home ought to remember that the one great trait of the Anglo-Saxon race, as contrasted with other peoples of the world, is its healthy manly and womanly physical life, that keeps the head well balanced, that produces goodly families of many healthy children, who shall make physical beings capable of standing the stage competition will later on subject them to.

If every one of us would take some regular exercise every morning, every week, if we would play some physical game once every day, we should make an infinitely more sane nation, and so would the people of England. Until the time comes when this is a fact, it is foolish, almost sinful—to criticise the human being for exercising too much. Because, say, 1,000 men in Great Britain make their living by [illegible], and draw crowds to watch them, [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] exercise. [illegible] [illegible]. Let us never discourage normal constant physical exercise.

LIQUOR LAWS OPENLY VIOLATED

Lawrence Judge Charges the Police With Neglect of Duty.

LAWRENCE, Mass., Feb. 12.—Judge Stone attacked the police at the session of police court this morning claiming that they were lax in enforcing the liquor laws. He said that during the 15 years he had been here he had never known such open violation of the law. He declared that hotels are openly violating the conditions of their licenses, and nothing is apparently being done to stop it. He said that the present condition of affairs "is shameful."

The annual report of the Park Commission for 1901, made to the City Council by the Chairman, William J. [illegible], is as follows:

The parks and cemeteries which are under the control of this commission have all been kept in good order.

A [illegible] drinking fountain and a [illegible] connection, and a new band stand have been placed in Morton Park. This expense, together with the repair and painting of the band stands in Touro Park and the Mall, have caused an overdraft of $153.33.

Band concerts were given as usual during the summer in Touro and Morton Parks and the Mall.

The trunks of the elm trees in the parks have been scraped and washed, preparatory to further treatment in the spring for the destruction of the elm leaf beetle.

A statement of the receipts and expenditures for the year 1901 is appended:

As announced in the News on [illegible], the report of the commissioners who were appointed to inquire into the desirability, necessity and cost of either making changes in the present stone bridge across the Seaconnet river in the town of Tiverton, or of building a new structure, was presented to the Senate at Tuesday's session. The commissioners, who are Charles [illegible], J. Herbert Shedd and [illegible] Church, after a careful examination of the structure and after holding hearings, one at Tiverton and one at Newport, report:

Your commissioners are convinced that the community immediately accommodated by the bridge, and the state at large, would, when the bridge is destroyed, recognize a material loss from the interruption of traffic over the highway and the means of transportation facilities between the island and the main land. Your commissioners conclude that:

CARDENAS CREW PLUCKY.

Three Hundred Miles Out at Sea, But Will Try to Work Back to Port Alone.

New York, [illegible]

That there are stout hearts on board the long missing barge Cardenas was shown Tuesday when British freighter [illegible] arrived at New York and reported sighting the all but helpless craft some 300 miles off shore. [illegible]

ARTILLERY OFFICERS DEFEAT GARDENERS

The Artillery rolling team and the Gardeners played a match at bowling [illegible] the Artillery alleys last evening, the [illegible] winning easily, taking each string and the total by a margin of [illegible] pins. [illegible] of the Artillery team was easily high roller [illegible].

SENATOR HOAR'S ANTI-ANARCHIST BILL.

[illegible] corps and "household brigades" of Europe are but expansions of comparatively small bodies of soldiers whose special duty was to protect the person of the sovereign.

The English Guards had their origin in the single regiment Charles II retained at his restoration for duty at the palace. A guards corps at Washington would soon develop from a detachment permanently on duty with the President. There would be an immediate rush of officers to be transferred to it from the line, and the "staff" would put in claims for this favor, too. Soldiers enough to make all the officers' "social" "go round" would be provided, and before we knew it we should have a regiment as "brilliant" as unnecessary. Such a provision as that in Mr. Hoar's bill is unnecessary, because the President as commander-in-chief can now detail officers and soldiers for duty at the White House or to attend him on his travels.

No President has made this detail because it has been realized from experience of other nations that escorts or guards are of no avail against the fanatic who will take his life in his hands. President Carnot was slain by an assassin who darted to the step of the presidential carriage literally between the trooper who rode at the rear wheels and the trooper who rode beside the box. Guards are little protection against a desperate man, and their uniforms warn one less determined simply to bide his time and trust to his cunning for finding his opportunity. The guards regiment would be practically useless save to add brilliancy to social and official functions at the capital. To detect and seize the murderous crank, one plainly dressed detective is to be preferred to the most brilliant guardsman.

ENOUGH ICE FOR NEXT SEASON.

The ice cutting is being pushed at [illegible] pond until 9 o'clock each night, [illegible] with the present rather pleasant weather the men are able to get as much more ice than they could in very cold weather. The ice was not very thick, seven to eight inches, but [illegible] will do in the absence of better. When work stopped last night the big [illegible] house was half full and the [illegible] Ice Company had the satisfaction of knowing that it had enough ice on hand for all next season.

HOW TO MAKE A STATUE.

If you are not interested you might read on and learn something.

A great sculptor, when asked how skill could be acquired in that art, replied, "By constant practice."

"It's easy," said he, "when you know how." "Here's a simple formula for making a statue: Take a chisel and knock off all you don't want."

Equally simple is the task of gathering this store's immense supplies, representative as they are of the latest productions of both hemispheres---that is, when you know how; but that knowledge, that aptitude, has taken years to acquire, nor are we through learning yet. In advertising our stock for a sale or in any other way we wish to say, as the public must have appreciated, that we never find it necessary to quote other stores' prices, as we never offer any article at a sale or otherwise unless there is merit enough in the article to stand back of itself and our store. Such are reasons for a store's great success.
